First Seven Months of New Administration Indicate That Treasury Would Have Spent More Than Income Had Original Bill Stood.

Come Had Original Bill Stood.

Indications are that the first seven months of the administration of Governor for months of the form for calling the receit/frant General Assembly of 1919 back to the Capitol for reduce its appropriations by approximately $1.000,000. to get them approximately $1.000,000. to $1.000. to get them approximately $1.000.000. to get them approximately $1.000.000. to get them approximately $1.000.000. to get the state $1.000.000. to get them approximately $1.000.000. to get the state $1.000.000. to get them approximately $1.000.000. to the fiscal year terminating September 30, 1913.

YEAN'S INCOME LITTLE ABOVE EXPENDITURES.

Receipts from all sources, according to the annual report, for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1918, amounted to $10, 5087,3850.10. Excess of receipts, according to the same period amounted to $10, 5087,3850.10. Excess of receipts, according to the same period amounted to $242, 540,45. The balance in the treasury on October 1, 1917, was $558,020.00. The sum of these two amounts made the balance in the treasury on october 1, this year, $500,660.54. More than two-thirds of this fund was a remainder of receipts of previous flecal years, as is indicated by the fligures.

But from this balance must be deducted the amounts due the departments October 1, 1918. The total of these dues leaves a true balance in the treasury of only $192,15494, which is $194,470.36 less than the additional amounts that also would have been due October 1 had not the appropriation bill, been reduced by $1,017,000 for the two fiscal years following February 1 and October 1 of $296,855, which, added to the Young the would have been months between February 1 and October 1 of $296,855, which, added to namely, $698,505,90, aggregates $995.

October 1 As he balance of all funds in the treasury on that date was only $500660.54, there would have been a deficit of $194,470.36.

SHOWS WISDOM OF KEEPING

EXPENDITURES IN BOUNDS

This ratio of deficit would have continued unless overcome by increases in the State's revenues during the remaining five months of the present appropriation year ending February 1, 1919, and the whole of the succeeding year shows a great. And while the State's revenues during the remaining five months of the present appropriation year ending February 1, 1919, and the whole of the succeeding year and while the State's revenues during the present appropriation year ending February 1, 1919, and the whole of the succeeding year shows a true balance in the treasury October 1, 1918, of only the $102,151.45 men year. And while the State's revenues do increase annually, it is problematical if the increase would have been of the amount cut off the appropriations for the seven months just by 100 deaths occurring daily passed. EXPENDITURES IN BOUNDS
